

5 Common First-Time Homebuyer Mistakes

- Not asking enough questions of their lender which can end up with missing out on the best loan product.
- Not being prepared on the front end of the process, in order to make a quick decision for placing an offer on a home and someone else buys the house.
- Not taking the time to research and interview multiple options to find the right real estate professional who's willing to help through the homebuying process.
- Not doing enough on the front end to prepare to make their offer look appealing to a seller.
- Not considering resale values before they buy. The average first-time buyer only stays in a home for four years.
